Regarding Breakfast in Telluride (Thursday, Friday, Saturday)

You will be able to choose your breakfast location depending on what your daily activity will be. Locations are on the grounds of Madeline Hotel.

Black Iron starts breakfast service at 7:30 am, therefore will be difficult to accommodate time for a sitdown meal for anyone taking a driving option on these days. All those NOT going on the drive will have breakfast available here until 10:30 am.

Starbucks will be available for all participants regardless of your daily activity

Peak to Peak will offer snacks (fruit, snack bars, etc) for driving participants that just want something to grab and go. These will be available at the Participants Meeting.

Breakfasts from Black Iron and Starbucks can be charged to your room, just remember to wear your Peak to Peak name tag!

**Saturday's breakfast can also be attained at the Telluride Airport from 8:30-10:00 am

Regarding Transportation to Saturday Evening's Festivities

Transportation to the Telluride Airport for the Autumn Classic Oktoberfest will be self-drive. This will provide some excellent promo for Peak to Peak and give us all a chance to show off our beautiful rides.

**All cars will have to arrive at the tarmac between 4:30 - 5:30 pm (ONLY)! Later load in is unavailable due to pedestrian safety reasons. Load in is through Gate #2. (Maps included in your Peak to Peak Participant Packets)

A full list of the festivities is listed on Page 22.

Happy Hour in Gunnison.

WELCOME TO THE PEAK TO PEAK

We welcome you to a Peak to Peak Rallye, Special Edition

We approach every Peak to Peak as being special, of course, but this edition has been planned out in a fashion that has distinct differences from the format we've followed in previous years. The primary variance is that upon leaving Arvada after an evening of merriment (responsible, of course), we will set up camp in a single location for the duration of our adventure, in contrast to moving around to multiple locations. One other addition to this year's Peak to Peak is that we will have a partial tie-in with another established car themed event, the Telluride Autumn Classic. Our closing dinner will be held in conjunction with the Autumn Classic at the Telluride Airport. It is here that we present a charitable donation to the organization that we've deemed truly worthy of our support. This is a tradition that is paramount in the overall scheme of Peak to Peak's purpose. This evening is certain to provide a good time for all!

As was just suggested above, our home for what will be a total of four nights is Telluride, Colorado. Telluride is situated in one of the most spectacular sections of Colorado's Rocky Mountains and will provide excellent viewing opportunities, not to mention some real cool drives. Regarding lodging, to steal a quote from the iconic film, Jurassic Park; "We've spared no expense"! The Madeline Hotel, located in Telluride's Mountain Village, is as good as it gets.

Speaking of drives, during our time in Telluride you will experience two different "Loop Days" through southwest Colorado and Eastern Utah. These outings will highlight what this amazing part of the country is all about; scenic twisties that take your breath away, coupled with stretches of black top that extend as far as the eye can see. That being said, we ask you to remember that Peak to Peak is NOT a high speed, police escorted event. Deviance from local traffic laws is not encouraged, especially in and around the many small communities we will be traveling through. We tend to be a highly visible group; thus, our intention is to draw only positive attention.

So, WELCOME! We look forward to reuniting with old friends, as well as making some new ones. We are excited to have you as part of the Peak to Peak family for this latest grand adventure!

With warm regards from your Peak to Peak Team!

2019 RALLYE CHARITY RECAP

Having produced Peak to Peak since 2004 we have had the opportunity to come across some outstanding organizations that have made it their mission to assist others in need. We were fortunate that our 2019 route took us through communities that house two of these non-profit organizations. Sizable donations, provided by Peak to Peak participants as well as by the rallye presenting Sponsor, Porsche Colorado Springs, were presented during lunchtime stops to the Gunnison Country Food Pantry (www.gunnisoncountryfoodpantry.org), and La Puente Home (www.lapuentehome.org). We are honored to assist these amazing folks in their endeavors!

2022 RALLYE CHARITY

One area of the Rallye that we spend considerable mental energy on is the charity component. We want to make a significant impact on a small community with limited resources. We choose from charitable organizations that meet a simple but specific criteria. We want to assist immediate need facilities, homeless shelters or food banks with little or no overhead. These organizations are supporting people that may find themselves in dire situations. Our decision to support non-profit organizations assures that our donations will go directly towards those in need. For 2022, we have selected the Norwood Food Bank to receive our assistance. Thanks to all of our Peak to Peak participants for making this possible!

The mission of Norwood Food Bank is to meet the food insecurities of individuals and families in Montrose and San Miguel Counties. They strive to provide an environment that is welcoming, inclusive, safe and non-judgmental. With the understanding that people with food insecurity often have additional needs, the Food Bank desires to be a hand up rather than a handout-connecting people to different programs and entities that can meet the needs of those they serve.

Norwood Food Bank is proud to offer multiple programs from their location:

School Snack Program is a government program in which the Food Bank delivers snacks to teachers to have on hand to give out to any children who are hungry or who might not have snacks of their own. Every month they provide enough snacks to teachers to supply them and their classrooms for the whole month. The snacks are delivered to a middle school, high school, as well as every elementary classroom for the schools they serve.

Weekend Food Program is a government program in which the Food Bank provide snacks and easy to prepare food for children and families. The Norwood School has most Fridays off so this program is designed to provide several meals that children can prepare themselves as well as snacks to get them through the long weekends without breakfast and lunch at school. These packages are delivered to participating families' doorsteps on Fridays so as to avoid any potential embarrassment of receiving such packages in front of their peers.

TEFAP (The Emergency Food Assistance Program) is a federal program that helps supplement the diets of low-income Americans by providing them with emergency food assistance at no cost. 98% of the recipients at Norwood Food Bank qualify for TEFAP and may receive this assistance once per month.

CSFP (Commodity Senior Food Program) is a government income-based food program in which their recipients over 60 years of age get a prepackaged box once a month with protein, canned fruit and vegetables, dry pasta, juices, and many more items. Recipients may receive one box per month.

Food Pantry. The food pantry is a place where anyone can come in and shop for food. It is open to anyone and happens four times per month.

Fresh Produce. Every Friday from 11:30 to 3:30 PM, the Food Bank gives out fresh produce to anyone who comes. It is open to all. They try to source local produce through the Fresh Food Hub. They offer two different types of distributions: 1) recipients may come inside and do in person shopping, selecting the items they can use off the shelves just like a grocery store; or 2) they may use the drive through service in which the Food Bank puts prepared boxes of food, produce, meat, bread, dairy and sweets into their car. They try to offer foods for special dietary requirements including gluten free, vegan, vegetarian, and culturally appropriate foods. They are always looking for volunteers and ways to partner with other agencies to provide food for different functions such as senior meal sites and the Norwood Library lunches for children.

ALTITUDE TOLERANCE

If you are not used to high altitude it's a good idea to take it easy the first couple days and drink plenty of water. You can quickly become dehydrated in the dry air of the mountains. Carry bottled water in your car. Eight glasses a day sounds like a lot, but you need it.

Don't forget sunglasses, a hat and your sunscreen. The sun can be very intense at altitude. That is if it doesn't snow...So, bring warm clothes and driving gloves. You just might need them as well.

DRIVER ETIQUETTE & SAFETY TIPS

Peak to Peak Rallye is NOT a high speed rallye. Observation of all traffic laws is essential lest ye be willing to accept consequences that could be levied upon thee by such authoritative organizations that may be called in to play. In other words, play nice or pay the price. This especially holds true in and around built up areas and the many small communities we pass through along the way. We generally attract plenty of attention by sporting our high visibility thoroughbreds alone, but the attention that is far more important is achieved by the behavior that we display. Most folks are not shy about reaching for their cell phones to report any action in which they feel slighted. Our presence will be felt. Please make that presence a positive one!

Use your best judgment and caution on the mountain roads and high elevation passes. Weather conditions can change quickly in the Rockies, thus it is best to be prepared for anything that Mother Nature decides to throw our way. And speaking of "nature", wildlife of various types can be encountered at any time, especially so in the mornings. Deer, elk, sheep, antelope, goats and other four-legged critters commonly congregate near the many secluded roadways we will travel along. The sign "Open Range" means that cattle are free to wander wherever they wish, which often means in the middle of the road. The rallye coincides with hunting season so beware of two-legged animals in orange vests carrying rifles (possibly drinking beer). It's best not to anger this species.

All rallye cars must be road legal and drivers must carry basic liability insurance as required in Colorado.

LUGGAGE AND MECHANICAL BREAKDOWN

A transporter will be available with some tools and equipment to deal with minor mechanical issues, or to haul a disabled vehicle if warranted. This transporter will also be used to carry any luggage you are unable to carry in your sports car.

Day 2 - Wednesday, September 21

First Day of Driving

Arvada to Telluride

So how about we get this show on the road!

Surely everyone is primed and ready for the next several days of gallivanting amongst the magnificent Colorado Rocky Mountains. We've kicked off the happenings with great food, drink, and camaraderie at the way cool Sculptured House, but now we hit the road for our first day of travel. Destination, Telluride!

The route that serves as conduit toward the road less traveled is Interstate 70 (I-70). The stretch of I-70 we will be traveling is considered among the most scenic anywhere along the U.S. Interstate System. A distinct elevation change will be encountered immediately upon leaving the Denver metropolitan area (we know you have heeded our Altitude Tolerance advisory and always have drinking water on hand). The I-70 corridor passes through the historic mining towns of Idaho Springs, Georgetown and Silver Plume before reaching the Eisenhower/Johnson Memorial Tunnels. At 11,158' above sea-level it is the highest point on America's Interstate Highway System and sits in direct line with the Continental Divide. A significant grade downward leads to a major source of Denver's water supply, Lake Dillon. Copper Mountain ski area lays at the eastern end of Vail Pass, which rises to an excess of 10,000 before dropping into the world-renowned ski resort and town of Vail. We advise watching your speed while passing through the Vail Valley as it is common for authorities to patrol this area hoping to ensnare anyone that may appear to be too anxious to reach their next destination. Besides, the scenery through this area can be quite spectacular with the changing fall colors in full display. We conclude our passage along I-70 with an awe-inspiring drive through Glenwood Canyon. This amazing geologic formation was carved out by the waters of the Colorado River but the engineering feat that allows the roadway to coincide with nature on this level is quite impressive as well. It is considered the "Crown Jewel" of the nation's Interstate System.

We depart I-70 at Glenwood Springs, a true outdoor paradise. Among the many activities to participate in include soaking those weary bones in the world's largest hot spring pool or live on the wild side (if you dare) by visiting Glenwood Caverns Adventure Park, America's only mountain top theme-park (editor's note: I can think of about 3 million things I'd do before swinging out over the edge of a canyon). Since there's a schedule to adhere to these things will just have to go on a to-do list for now. Moving ahead, we pass through Carbondale on the way to today's lunch stop at the Redstone Inn. After lunch it's just a short way to one of the highly entertaining roads we'll encounter this week. McClure Pass and the stretch that follow are real gems. It's officially time to have some fun! Upon passing Paonia Reservoir the route becomes a bit more sedate. Speeds should be tempered, especially while passing through the coal mining community of Somerset, where the posted limit is exceedingly slow. From this point on, the main objective is just to make it to Telluride without causing too much trouble. Highlights include the approach to Ridgway; it's obvious where the name comes from. Outside of Ridgway, on the Dallas Divide, is where famous designer Ralph Lauren had the spectacular Double RL Ranch built. The setting here makes it easy to understand why this site was chosen. And now we have Telluride on our radar. Fuel is available just prior to reaching our home for the night. Now would be a good time to top off before hitting the road again in the morning

Day 3 - Thursday, September 22

Second Day of Driving

San Juan Scenic Skyway Loop

Admittedly, almost every road in Colorado could be classified as scenic. However, the Colorado Department of Transportation places the prestigious title of “Scenic Byway” on those drives that not only look pretty through the car window, but also inspire awe through richly preserved natural and historical features. There are 150 scenic roads designated as America’s byways, but just one deserves to be called a “skyway”. The San Juan Skyway is 236 miles of highway that traverse mountain passes higher than 10,000 feet, winds through historic mining towns and national forests, and travel the grades of bygone railroads. The Skyway also circumnavigates the San Juan Mountains, a rugged and dynamic range with 19 peaks jutting above 13,000 feet. The mountain scenes are beautiful anytime of the year, but they are particularly breathtaking at the height of fall.

We will start the day retracing our arrival in Telluride, through Placerville, over Dallas Divide and through Ridgway. Ridgway was the filming location of John Wayne’s classic film True Grit. Next we arrive in the town of Ouray (7,706 ft). Ouray has been dubbed “The Switzerland of the Rockies”, with its quaint Victorian architecture and mining town history part of the town’s charm. At the height of mining, Ouray had more than 30 active mines. The entirety of Main Street is registered as a National Historic District with most of the buildings dating back to the late nineteenth century.

From Ouray the Skyway climbs over Red Mountain Pass (11,099 ft) with a steep 8 percent grade and relentless switchbacks. The original toll road, built by businessman Otto Mears in the 1880s, was a feat of engineering. Some say that the nickname “Million Dollar Highway” refers to the cost of rebuilding the road in the 1990s, yet others believe it comes from the good value of gold mine tailings used to create its roadbed.

The cool hat is keeping Jim Edwards warm.

On the south side of the pass is the old mining town Silverton (9,305 ft) which is the end of the rail line for The Durango and Silverton Narrow Gauge Railroad (D&SNGR). The D&SNGR chugs out of Durango daily and following a different route than the San Juan Skyway, the steam-powered train takes visitors to and from Silverton. From Silverton we will climb scenic Molas Pass (10,910 ft) and Coal Bank Pass (10,640 ft) before arriving in Durango (6,512 ft). This mountain/college town is our lunch destination. After lunch we’ll head for Mancos (7,028 ft). Mancos holds the trademark “Gateway to Mesa Verde”. Northwest of Mancos we will pass through the quaint town of Dolores (6,936 ft) and the mining town of Rico (8,825 ft) before we reach Lizard Head Pass (10,222 ft). The pass is named for the unusual rock formation seen reaching the sky in the northwest. Rising more than 400 feet above the top of an already lofty mountain, the vertical, sheer-walled monolith is a product of the region’s volcanic past. Before a large piece fell off, the spire more closely resembled the head of a lizard. On the back side of the pass you will continue to wind back into the valley and eventually reaching the Mountain Village we started our day at.

Day 4 – Friday, September 23

Third Day of Driving

Moab Loop

Upon leaving Mountain Village we venture south this time, covering the route to Dolores with which we finished yesterday's travels. But this does not mean we'll be driving the same road (say what?). Traveling most any road in the opposite direction can make it a completely different experience, especially fun ones such as this. The turns are different, the scenery aspect is different, and the elevation perspective is different. A trek through the Dolores Valley gets the day started off on a good note. The town of Dolores, which in Spanish translates to "sorrows", was established as a station on the Rio Grande Southern Railroad and replaced an earlier town, Big Bend, which is now covered by nearby McPhee Reservoir. In roughly 40 miles we'll cross into Utah and then connect with US-191 in Monticello, but not before passing through Dove Creek, the self-proclaimed Pinto Bean Capital of the World (and now you can cross that off your bucket list). The Monticello area was settled by pioneers from The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints in 1887; it was named in honor of Thomas Jefferson's estate. From here we head north toward our lunch destination in Moab. Along the way we encounter a roadside attraction appropriately named, Hole N' The Rock. You can't miss it due to the 20' tall white letters painted onto the surrounding redstone formations. The attraction encompasses a 5000 square foot home, gift shop, trading post, and petting zoo (when was the last time you fed a camel?). Hole N' the Rock was carved out of the surrounding sandstone by Albert Christensen and served as the residence for Albert and Gladys Christensen until Albert's death in 1957. So, before anybody here dies of starvation how about we mosey on and grab some chow.

Moab, Utah is in the heart of some of the most interesting geologic formations in all the country. Arches and Canyonlands National Parks offer up some extreme site seeing. And nearby Castle Valley has served as background for a vast number of Hollywood films. But there's no time to fully explore this region today as we are on a mission. Traveling south on US-191 the Manti-La Sal National Forest is in full display to the east. The forest covers more than 1.2 million acres and serves as a popular recreation destination. We turn left at La Sal Junction and head east back into Colorado. This stretch of road offers distinct contrasts. Forested sections lead to an elevation drop which opens up into a vast open range. You will NOT want to ignore the clearly defined traffic signs that precede the twisty elevation change. To do so would not be in your best interest! The community of Bedrock sits at the entrance to Paradox Valley and a straight stretch of blacktop that looks as if it may usher travelers to the edge of the earth. This Bedrock is not home to the Flintstones, but the general store, built in 1882, was featured in the 1991 film, Thelma and Louise (like I said, "edge of the earth"). It's roughly 20 miles before coming to Naturita. From there we follow CO-145 through Norwood and Placerville before arriving back in Telluride. There could very well be heightened monitoring of this roadway as a recent incident involving another high profile sportscar rallye occurred just outside of Norwood. Let us not add to any stressors this community may still be experiencing.

Once back in the friendly confines of Mountain Village, the scheduled driving portion of the 2022 Peak to Peak Rallye officially comes to an end. Tomorrow will offer an optional Road Rally/Poker Run for those that haven't had enough just yet. The Gateway Auto Museum Road Rally/Poker Run is put on by the Telluride Autumn Classic and is included in your Peak to Peak entry fee. If you choose not to participate in this outing, the day has been set aside as a free day for you to enjoy this beautiful area as you so desire. A rest day before making the drive home might not be a bad way to go!
